

VIDEO DOCUMENTARY
OF THE FIRST FAMILY CAMP AT ECHO HILL RANCH

Family Based programs in Texas help at-risk families during crises by improving parenting and family functioning while keeping the children safe. Attending Family Camp provides a valuable and complementary service to these families because they have the opportunity to positively reconnect to one another, experience success together in practical ways, see each other as more competent individuals, and gain a desperately needed respite from the crises and demands of their urban world.

This video is a brief documentary made at the first Family Camp, July 24-27, 2011 with families from the Kinship Care Program of Harris County, who without the support of Echo Hill and the donors would never have had the opportunity to participate in such an experience.
